

Attempted murder charged

By Shay Wessol
Staff writer

An East Madison man now faces a charge of attempted murder for a brutal Nov. 27 attack against his girlfriend. Daryl Teller, 34, of the 1900 block of Fourth Street, was initially charged with aggravated battery for allegedly kicking and beating his girlfriend, also of the Madison area.

On Tuesday, the state added the additional charge of attempted murder. Teller has pleaded innocent to the charges, with voluntary intoxication as his defense.

The woman sustained severe internal injuries to her abdomen and external injuries to her face, including broken cheekbones, said Assistant State's Attorney Craig Jensen, who is prosecuting the case. Teller was wearing gym shoes during the attack, which probably saved the woman's life, Jensen said.

Madison County Associate Judge J. Lawrence Keshner allowed the amended charges in a hearing in the Madison County Third Circuit Court at Edwardsville.

During the hearing, Teller grew belligerent and yelled at Keshner, Jensen and his attorney Tom Hildebrand of Granite City. Teller also fired Hildebrand for his suggestion to accept a plea bargain to the charge of aggravated battery.

If Teller had accepted the open plea, the second charge of attempted murder would not have been filed, Jensen said.

"I intend to proceed on both counts, and I fully anticipate to go to trial in January," Jensen said.

"I'm going to try him with every possible charge I can think of."

The charge of attempted murder carries a possible six- to 30-year sentence. Aggravated battery is punishable by a two- to five-year sentence.

Teller will be appointed a public defender later this week, Keshner said.

During the time of the attack, Teller was on probation for another attack on the woman three years ago, Jensen said.

He was convicted of aggravated battery for stabbing her in the shoulder with a knife, sentenced to four years in the Department of Corrections and later paroled, Jensen said.

Teller is now in custody in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Law provides 2nd chance for tax breaks for flood victims

Republican Madison County Treasurer John Shimkus of Collinsville is taking another shot at getting the Democratic-controlled County Board to enact property tax relief for disaster victims.

Three months ago, Shimkus suggested that county residents washed out by the 1993 flood be given extra time to pay property taxes.

Shimkus' proposal was aimed at helping property owners hurt by the flood. But a glitch in state law would have required the county to offer the break to all property owners, not just a few.

There are 18,000 parcels of property in Madison County, only about 160 of which were affected by the flood. At the time, County Board members ignored Shimkus' proposal because several members were afraid the exemption would be abused by property owners not hurt by the flood.

In addition, some members indicated the proposal was unconstitutional because Shimkus is a Republican. However, in late November Gov. Jim Edgar signed legislation that gives counties the power to extend tax deadlines for victims of floods, tornadoes or other natural disasters without having to offer the break to all county property owners.

The new law is too late to do much good for victims of this summer's flooding, since the payment deadlines have passed. But property owners affected by future floods or other disasters could receive extended payment deadlines under the new law.

"I'm really happy about the proactive language of the legislation. This gives the County Board the ability to identify the areas that need help and do something about it. That's something the board couldn't do under the old law," Shimkus said last week.

Shimkus encouraged board members to pass an ordinance setting up guidelines for determining what level of damage would qualify a property owner for relief.

"I would like to see the appropriate committee take up this matter," he said.

Board Member Alan Dunstan of Troy, a Democrat who chairs the County Board's Legislative Committee, could not be reached for comment but has advocated tax relief for flood victims.

Another provision of the new law gives county officials the power to refund late payment penalties imposed on flood victims for taxes paid in 1993.

It is unclear, however, whether the County Board will decide whether to offer such refunds because of the small amount of money involved.

Most penalties paid by flood victims this fall ranged from 50 cents to $30, according to Shimkus' office.

"The board will have to decide whether it would be cost-effective to refund such small amounts of money," Shimkus said, adding that it would require at least one full-time employee to process refund claims and write checks to property owners.

Sixty of the 100 properties with extensive flood damage in Madison County are in Alton, county records show. The remaining 40 are in Chouteau and Venice townships.

Plea to cut murder sentence is rejected

By Shay Wessol
Staff writer

An emotional plea was not enough to convince a Madison County judge to reduce the sentence of a 20-year-old Granite City man who pleaded guilty to murder.

Robert Russell appeared before Associate Judge J. Lawrence Keshner on Wednesday for a hearing requesting a reduction in his 35-year prison sentence.

Russell had been sentenced for his participation in the 1992 killing of disabled steelworker Thomas Bauer, also of Granite City.

Russell pleaded guilty to first-degree murder earlier this year and was sentenced in late August.

Keshner denied the motion. In his comments to the court, Russell asked for a second chance, saying he had behaved himself during the first few months of his prison sentence and that he had learned his lesson.

"I couldn't put a worm on a hook to kill a fish," Russell said. "I didn't kill nobody. I was just there."

"If I could go back and change this, I would. If I could go back and trade places with this guy (Bauer), I would."

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Trone pointed out that Russell had received the lightest sentence of the three co-defendants who entered Bauer's house in August 1992.

John McIntyre, 19, received 45 years and Jeffrey Ramsey, 25, received 55 years.

The alleged mastermind of the murder plot, Roena Ashing, 39, is serving a 40-year sentence. Russell also attacked Russell's allegation that he didn't kill Bauer, citing testimony from McIntyre during an earlier sentencing hearing.

"He wasn't a passive participant," Trone said. "He was a very active participant."

McIntyre testified that Russell hit Bauer over the head with a cast-iron skillet until the bottom broke out of it. Bauer was also strangled with a belt, doused with gasoline and set on fire.

Indicted for armed robbery

A 17-year-old St. Louis man was indicted by a Madison County grand jury last week on two counts of armed robbery in Granite City.

Wilbert J. Tilson is currently in custody in the Madison County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Granite City police allege that Tilson took $890, Hardee's gift certificates and a ring from three people on Nov. 7 at the Hardee's Restaurant on Chain of Rocks Road.

He was charged in the Third Circuit Court on Nov. 8. During the robbery, customers in the restaurant were forced to the floor at gunpoint. A juvenile was arrested in the case. Police believe a third man was involved but have been unable to prove it, said Capt. Roy Koberna of the Granite City Police Department.

Abuse alleged in lawsuit

A Venice man is suing the city of Venice for more than $115,000 for alleged abuse by city police.

Darron L. Lott, who filed the lawsuit in Third Circuit Court last week through his attorney, Tom Hildebrand, alleges that he was abused by police during an arrest on Nov. 28, 1992.

The suit alleges that Lott was "violently assaulted by agents, servants and employees" of the city and suffered injuries to his head, neck, arms, legs and back.

Hildebrand said Lott complied with the standard arrest procedure of lying on his stomach with his hands behind his back the night the alleged abuse occurred.

But, Hildebrand said, Lott alleges that, once he was handcuffed, police pulled him up by his restrained wrists, breaking his arm. Lott is asking for $15,000 and court costs in actual damages and $100,000 in punitive damages.

Bridick Residents

Petty street crime is a problem in Madison that is unlikely to be solved and so Madison Police Chief Charlie Bridick said Tuesday.

Responding to separation of complaint sent to the Council from the First Presbyterian Church of Madison, Bridick presented a bleak outlook for law enforcement in the city.

"It's a matter of priorities. We've got two, three most on the street."

"When the chance comes to responding to a drug accident, loud music or sign violation, they have to respond. They can't be everywhere, and some are going to be missed."

The Rev. Charles Selph of the First Presbyterian Church Third Street complained of vandalism and gunfire in the neighborhood.

He "respectfully denied" that the city law enforcement officials provide "proper protection" if they can law enforcement officials that the officials be required to respond to the area.

Bridick said the Third area has been identified as high-crime area and have increased patrols.

The chief said the incident that prompted the complaint have not occurred since were increased.

Kathleen Johnston of Concerned Citizens of Madison complained of speeding, stop sign violation and music and gunfire in the West Madison area.

Bridick: Street crime tough to stop

Residents complain about vandalism, speeding, noise

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Petty street crime is a "real problem" in Madison that is unlikely to be solved any time soon, Madison Police Chief Charlie Bridick said Tuesday.

Responding to separate letters of complaint sent to the City Council from the First Presbyterian Church and Concerned Citizens of West Madison, Bridick presented a bleak outlook for law enforcement in the city.

"It's a matter of priorities. We've got two, three men at most on the street."

"When the choice comes down to responding to a drug deal, an accident, loud music or a stop sign violation, they have to set priorities. They can't be everywhere, and some violations are going to be missed."

The Rev. Charles Schwenke of the Presbyterian Church on Third Street complained about vandalism and gunfire in the neighborhood.

He "respectfully demanded" that the city law enforcement officials provide "proper police protection" if they can, or, if law enforcement officials cannot, that the officials be replaced.

Bridick said the Third Street area has been identified as a high-crime area and that police have increased patrols in the area.

The chief said the incidents that prompted Schwenke's letter have not recurred since patrols were increased.

Kathleen Johnston of the Concerned Citizens of West Madison complained about speeding, stop sign violations, loud music and public drinking in the West Madison neighborhood.

She asked that the police start issuing tickets for those violations in an effort to show offenders they will be prosecuted.

Bridick said the department had increased patrols in West Madison in response to Johnston's letter and that the police officers had been instructed to write tickets for every violation observed.

"But once again, it's a matter of priorities," Bridick said. "I understand the problems with noise pollution and I sympathize with the citizens."

"But there are times when priority has to go to a high-crime area."

Bridick said the prospects for increasing the size of the police force are almost nil.

He said the city is waiting to hear how the federal plan for "100,000 more cops on the beat" may help.

But Bridick and Mayor John Bellotti both said they expected the money to go to the state and, if it does, they do not expect much of it to trickle down to cities the size of Madison.

Concerning local funding, the proposed 1993 property tax levy for police protection — $22.768 at the maximum allowable rate — is not enough to pay the salary of a single officer.

And, Bridick said, revenue from fines — formerly a major source of revenue for the police department — has decreased drastically.

"The fact is that writing citations for most violations has become a money-losing proposition," Bridick said.

"From a $75 speeding fine we are going to get $12, $14 at most. My officer has time invested in the arrest, processing the violation, going to court, and we're not getting anything out of it."

"That's why, when you look at the income from fines, it has dropped so much. It's not that we're writing less tickets; we're just getting less money."

City Attorney Casper Nighossian said the problem is that, in the last 10 years, the state has decided traffic fines are a convenient way to fund state programs.

He said it started with $5 of every fine going to fund traffic school and "since then it has been $5 for this program and $5 for that program until it's out of control."

Nighossian said the reason there are no longer $50 fines is that, by the time state-mandated fees and court costs were paid, nothing was left for the agency issuing the citation.

He said the standard $100 fine has been raised to $110 to cover two more $5 mandates put in place by the state legislature.

He suggested that the aldermen, rather than asking the state legislators for financial help for law enforcement, start putting pressure on legislators to start funding their own mandates.

"You would get more financial benefit, and get it faster, if you could get the state to get rid of all of these stupid fees," Nighossian said.

Alderman Mike Vrabeck said that, while he personally understood the problem, the "average citizen" might think it was all an excuse to stop writing tickets. He asked if something could be done to "turn up the heat."

Bridick suggested that the issue be pushed so that it "ends up on the front page of the newspapers."

Alderman Ed Newsome asked if it would be possible to have the auxiliary police assist in patrol duties.

Bridick said the use of auxiliary police is limited by both state statutes and the union contract.

"The only time the auxiliary can serve as police officers is if the police department ceases to function," Bridick said.

"In other words, if five of our officers were killed in an accident, then the auxiliary police could take over."

Newsome asked if the auxiliary police could be hired as part-time police officers — a move Bridick has opposed in the past because auxiliary police officers are not required to have, and do not have, formal law enforcement training.

Nighossian said the city is (See CRIME, Page 10A)

Campbell concert site moved

The location of Friday's flood relief concert featuring country music star Glen Campbell has been moved to the Hawthorne Cultural Center at Lewis and Clark Community College.

Slow ticket sales sparked the move from the River Bend Arena on campus, said Debbie Wright, marketing director for Wedge Bank, which is bankrolling the show.

"Instead of getting 2,500 people at the River Bend Arena, we can seat 1,000 comfortably at Hawthorne."

Through Tuesday morning, 535 tickets had been sold for the Alton Lake Flood Relief Concert, Wright said. The decision to move the show was made Tuesday afternoon by bank President Lynn Hall and college President Dale Chapman, she said.

Wedge Bank Chief Executive Officer and Board Chairman Melvin G. Hall, who secured Campbell, has given $5,000 for the concert, and the bank has matched his donation. Campbell will perform for free, and the college will donate use of the center.

"It's a lovely atmosphere and has high quality for a performer like Glen Campbell," Wright said.

Proceeds from the 7 p.m. concert will be put into a trust at Wedge Bank. Mayors from flood-afflicted communities will decide how the money is distributed. Organizers hope to raise $50,000.

Tickets are $25 in advance and $30 the day of the concert.

Editorials

Rethinking a can of worms

As long as the requirement that aldermen live in the ward they represent was etched in statutory stone, reform discussion was limited to at-large versus ward aldermen.

The size of wards — one-seventh of the city in Granite City and one-fourth in Madison and Venice — gives residents a strong voice in government by making the ears of the aldermen more receptive to citizen complaints.

The counter argument was that — based on where they happened to reside — the best people were not always available for elected office. A promising young person who lives in a ward where senior aldermen are entrenched in office has no real chance for election and that person's service is lost to the community.

A clerical error in a 1992 statute has drastically changed the argument. While aldermen are still required to be elected by ward in cities that have wards, aldermen no longer have to reside in the ward they represent. The Illinois Municipal League, which opened a "can of worms" when it wrote the "faulty" statute, plans to have it revised before the next city election.

But is that really necessary? Under the law, as written, are any drastic changes likely?

If we look at Venice Township as an example, the answer is no. All Venice Township officials are elected at large, but the positions have been unofficially divided among Madison, Venice and Eagle Park. Madison gets the supervisor and collector, Venice gets the clerk and assessor, Eagle Park gets the road commissioner and Venice and Madison each get two trustees.

So far, the division of Venice Township offices has never been successfully challenged. The possibility that a strong candidate will someday upset the balance, however, has kept Venice Township officials very receptive to the voters.

Even if the residency law remains unchanged, the odds are against anyone other than a ward resident being elected alderman. Ward residents are much more likely to trust their interests with one of their own rather than trust them with an outsider.

But suppose that someday in the future a ward half-heartedly elects and keeps re-electing an ineffective alderman because he or she is the only ward resident who bothers to run.

Suppose a very popular neighborhood businessman in that ward — who lives in a different ward — is willing to challenge the incumbent. The incumbent either has to become an effective alderman or be defeated. Either way, the residents win.

In communities like Madison and Venice, the pool of people willing and qualified to hold office is small. The pool of people willing, qualified and motivated to run is even smaller. A lack of competition in any business and especially in politics — tends to lead to complacency. While the threat of having someone come in from across town and upset the apple cart may be small, it is probably worth having that threat in place.

Ultimately, the voters of a ward must be trusted to select the best person to represent them. If the argument that a person should live in the ward is really as strong as its proponents say, the voters will agree with it.

This can of worms — all the discussion, examples, worst- and best-case scenarios, ramifications and consequences of doing away with ward residency — boils down to one thing: a wider candidate selection for voters.

There is no way that can be bad.

Beating a dead horse — or should she say stallion?

(Carol Clarkin writes this Edwardsville Journal column.)

Weren't you relieved a week ago (Dec. 1) when you woke and found the world still spinning on its axis, the sun rising in the east? Hearing bird calls, not the dying notes of the last trumpet? No fire, no brimstone. Realizing that what had been fought the previous day in suburban from hip-hop to the final battle between the forces of good and evil, but simply the NFL owners vs. the four wanna-be winners of a single football expansion franchise?

I'm here to tell you, I wiped the sweat from my brow. I'd been expecting the worst, anticipating the Final Judgment.

After all, from late afternoon of Nov. 30 until the midnight hour, I'd lived vicariously through what appeared to be the most traumatic emotional turmoil of the century.

The St. Louis Stallions had died a burning. Life had become meaningless. Like lemmings rushing over the cliff and into the sea, I fully expected thousands of St. Louisans to pour onto the area bridges and into the Mississippi, drowning their sorrows in the Big Muddy.

At least, that's what local TV news/sports teams led me to believe. From the initial announcement late in the afternoon through the entire evening, we saw little else. Aside from the network national news shows, that is.

Local news paid scant heed to anything else, including an Amtrak wreck in Florida and the family of a St. Louis attorney being held hostage for 12 hours by an 18-year-old gunman.

Regularly scheduled programs were supplanted by hastily organized local "special reports" which hashed and re-hashed the gloom and doom of St. Louis' loss to Jacksonville, Fla.

We heard interviews and statements from nearly everybody connected to the efforts to secure a resident team for the new stadium — an angry Charles F. Knight, a calmer Stan Kroenke, a resigned Mayor Freeman Bosley Jr., a saddened Walter Payton.

We heard a few dismissive words from a haughty Paul Tagliabue. A few more from the hyperactive Bill Bidwell, a fox grin and all.

We listened to analysis after analysis of "what went wrong, where did we go wrong, whose fault was this disaster really?"

Like voyeurs, we watched the emotional turmoil of those who had gathered in the area sports bars for planned celebrations which had turned into waxes.

I don't know about you, but by bedtime I was ready to barf. I don't know whether folks in Baltimore and Memphis behaved the same way a lot of them did in St. Louis and I don't want to know.

I do know that, Wednesday morning, it was more-of-the-same from the Post-Dispatch. Fourteen want 'em, news stories, in all — and that doesn't count an editorial and a nearly-40-paragraph column.

All beating a dead horse — or should I say, stallion? Up front, let me say this: I don't want to get the franchise.

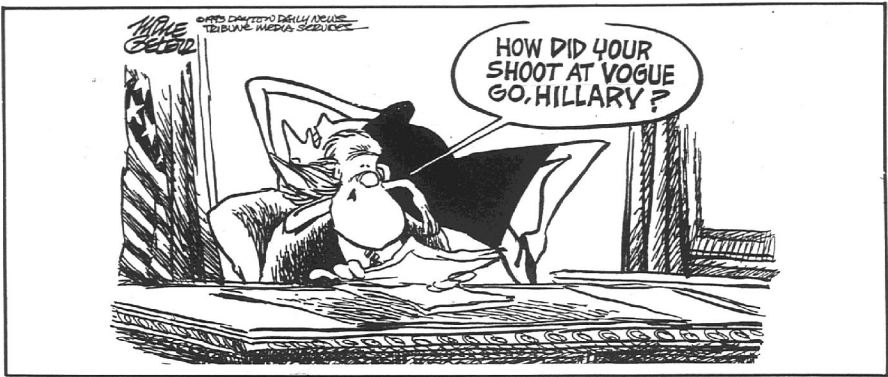

It would have been nice to once again have a pro football team in our area. It would undoubtedly have been a nice economic boost to the neighborhood, another "plus" for area tourism.

But it's not the end of the world for the city, its business interests or its football fans. The city and the metropolitan area will survive. We will overcome. The end is not coming — at least, not yet.

Putting the whole thing into perspective, the total hoopah over the affair seems a bit silly and overblown. And to me, at least, very, very tiresome.

And, who knows, maybe James Busch Orthwein may yet change his mind and bring the Patriots to St. Louis.

All may not be lost. Just remember the annoyingly optimistic "Annie." "The sun will come out tomorrow, bet your bottom dollar..." Who knows what yet-unknown Daddy Warbucks may be lurking in the wings!

All need to help fight rise in crime, violence

(By U.S. Rep. Richard Durbin, Springfield, Ill., Democrat)

One of the most serious issues facing our nation is the increase in violent crime.

Even once-safe small towns are now plagued by illegal drugs, gang violence and drive-by shootings — problems that we once limited to the worst neighborhoods in big cities. No one is free from crime anymore.

According to a joint report by the U.S. Department of Justice and the FBI, called "Crime in the United States," in 1992 there were 1,217 murders in Illinois.

Of those murders, 689 were committed with a handgun — the fourth highest total in the nation. In Springfield, 11 murders were reported in 1992 — up from one in 1991.

To gain a clear understanding of the crime problems facing local law enforcement officials in Illinois, I hosted two crime roundtable discussions recently in Springfield and Edwardsville.

Because the participants deal with crime on a daily basis, they were able to help me better understand the problems facing our local communities and how the federal "response can meet their needs.

Our guest

Everyone agreed that a strong family can help prevent a young person from turning to a life of crime. However, while strong family values are important, the government has a role to play as well.

In November, the House approved several of President Bill Clinton's anti-crime initiatives.

The bills that were approved would help reduce gang and drug activities by young people, provide substance abuse treatment for state and federal inmates in order to reduce the number of repeat offenders, and put more police officers on the streets to help stop crime before it happens. Springfield has applied for some of those funds in hopes of adding 10 officers to high-crime neighborhoods.

In addition, on Nov. 10 the House passed the Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act. The bill is named after President Ronald Reagan's press secretary, Jim Brady, a Central Intelligence Agency employee who was shot and permanently disabled by John Hinckley in his 1981 assassination attempt on President Reagan.

The Brady Bill, which is supported by law enforcement organizations across the country, will help keep guns out of the hands of criminals by imposing a five-day waiting period for the purchase of handguns, allowing time for local law enforcement authorities to check the purchaser's criminal background.

What must be kept in mind is that Brady only deals with handguns, not rifles and shotguns.

I believe that Americans are entitled to own and use guns in a responsible fashion. Many hunting and sporting activities rely on the responsible use of guns for their success. However, I also agree with 92 percent of gun owners, who support the Brady Bill.

Waiting periods have proven effective. Last year alone, Illinois denied 2,896 permits and revoked 3,901 because the purchaser had a felony conviction.

And although not every gun used in violent crimes is purchased legally, 28 percent of state prison inmates nationwide reported that they bought a gun over the counter.

Stopping even some of the senseless crimes of passion by ensuring a cooling-off period is a smart policy. The waiting period is the only effective method now available.

The bill will not be applicable after five years, when a national computer system for felon identification is expected to be in place, enabling the dealer to obtain an instant background report.

Everyone has a role to play in helping to combat crime.

In Congress, that means passing bills that give law enforcement officers the resources they need to do their jobs and that help communities establish programs to fight crime.

In communities, it means participating in neighborhood watch programs and other crime prevention activities.

Working together, we can help bring down the skyrocketing crime rate.

Just say 'no' to premarital sex

— TO THE EDITOR:

— Just say NO. We see it everywhere. We see posters in the hallways of our public schools. We see it on television. We see it on newspaper stickers. We see it on television. "Say no to alcohol and drugs."

We need to encourage our teenagers to say "no" also to premarital sex. We need to provide counseling that challenges the myth of "safe sex."

We need a place where teens can call and/or visit and speak with a trained counselor who will encourage them in their desire to abstain from premarital sex and will help those who have been sexually active to abstain in the future.

We must not only tell teens that abstinence through self-control is the only safe alternative but that abstinence is possible for every young person concerned with the epidemic of sexually transmitted diseases (STDs).

Our permissive society tells teens self-control is impossible. Uncontrolled sexual activity, fueled by such propaganda, has created an epidemic of STDs.

About 10 million Americans visit a clinic or doctor's office for STDs each year. It is suspected that an equal number go untreated. Thousands die each year as a result.

The fastest spreading STD is chlamydia trachomatis. Gonorrhea, a major cause of sterility, infects about 1.4 million teens and adults each year. Especially among young teen girls, the number of gonorrhea cases has increased alarmingly.

Just last week, it was reported that health officials were alarmed at the rise of syphilis cases in the St. Louis and Metro East area.

AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome), the STD most common among homosexuals and bisexuals, kills by attacking the system that defends the body against infections.

Dr. Helmut Richter, director of the Adolescent AIDS program at Montefiore Medical Center and the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York, is an expert who is deeply concerned about the spread of AIDS among teens.

Dr. Richter believes that teens will be the next group at high risk for contracting AIDS.

These experts see AIDS as an epidemic that moves in waves. The first wave was made up of homosexual and bisexual males, the second of intravenous drug users, and the third of babies and young children. The next wave, one which is building, will be made up of teens.

Because the AIDS virus can be passed through sexual contact, even as long as 10 years, teens who may be infected now will not show any symptoms until perhaps their early or mid-30s.

It is estimated that one in seven teens currently has a sexually transmitted disease and does not know it.

Because young people are sexually active and at risk, each day in the U.S. 11,000 teens contract an STD, 25 percent of those with gonorrhea and syphilis are 10 to 19 years old.

The former surgeon general, C. Everett Koop, and former secretary of education, William Bennett, tell young people the best way to avoid AIDS and other STDs is to refrain from sex until, as adults, they are ready to establish a mutually faithful monogamous relationship.

Teens must be told the truth. Abstinence is the only way to avoid AIDS and other STDs.

But an AIDS education that accepts children's sexual activity as inevitable and focuses only on "safe sex" will, at best, infect a teen, if itself may cause serious harm.

Young people should be counseled that the best precaution is abstinence. We need this kind of counseling available to the children of our community.

Science and morality teach us the same lesson. Abstinence is the safe alternative.

Where the AIDS virus is present, there is no "safe sex." We know that the failure rate for condoms used to avoid pregnancy is found to be 10 percent over the course of a year.

Consider that a woman can become pregnant only a few days each month. People can get AIDS any day during the month.

How much protection does a condom give? An AIDS virus is 20 times smaller than a sperm cell and can easily pass through natural skin condoms.

There is still uncertainty about how effectively even a latex condom protects against the virus. In a recent medical survey of women married to AIDS-infected men, 17 percent of the women became infected with the virus within 18 months, even though they used an condom.

Condoms are not an easy answer or a good alternative to self-control and abstinence.

Sexual self-control can help create better marriages and protect marriages. People who do not practice self-control before marriage will not automatically have it after marriage.

Abstinence also keeps teens from developing an association between sex, guilt, fear and shame. These negative associations, too, can be carried into marriage, robbing them of the pleasure and fulfillment they could have enjoyed.

Abstinence helps young people learn that sex goes with responsibility and commitment. They also have a better chance to learn what love really is. The list goes on and on.

There is a myth that teens are incapable of understanding that it is their best interest to save themselves until marriage, that virginity is not "cool."

Almost 65 percent of all high school females are virgins.

A few years ago in Lexington, Ky., a youth event featured no sports contest, no rock group, just an ex-convict named Harold Morris talking about abstinence, among other subjects.

The coliseum seated 18,000 people, but 26,000 teens showed up. Eventually, more than 2,000 stood outside the packed auditorium and listened over a hastily prepared public address system.

Who says kids are not interested in abstinence? Colleen Kelly said, "I have a book entitled 'Self-Respect.'"

"Self-control is part of being human. Self-control does not mean we try to run away from everything that has to do with sexuality. Remember, our sexuality is part of our human personality."

"The sex drive is not bad, any more than the desire to drive a car is bad. But if we want to drive, we must have a license and follow the rules of the road."

"Self-control, being able to follow the rules, sets us apart from the animals."

Festival gets $440,000 boost

The Illinois Bureau of Tourism and the Southwestern Illinois Tourism and Convention Bureau are supporting the 1994 Olympic Festival with a $440,000 advertising and public relations campaign.

Out-of-town visitors spend about $50 a day, according to Herb Rautenberg, executive director for the Southwestern Illinois Tourism and Convention Bureau.

"If Southwestern Illinois can attract just 25,000 people each day for the four festival days, local businesses should receive about $5 million in additional revenues," Rautenberg said.

"The program is an investment in the future of Southwest Illinois," he said.

Southwestern Illinois is a strong, growing part of Illinois and the St. Louis region, said Donna Shaw, director of the Illinois Bureau of Tourism. "and the Olympic Festival will help stimulate even more economic growth."

"Advertising and public relations will reach Chicago, Northern Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin," said Shaw. "encouraging people to visit Southwestern Illinois."

"The Illinois Tourism Bureau is thinking beyond the Olympic Festival," said Shaw. "Southwestern Illinois has numerous tourism opportunities, and the bureau is capitalizing on the region's strengths."

Perhaps more than any other time of year, Christmas is the time to bring out old family recipes.

Few areas in the world can boast the ethnic diversity of the Granite City-Madison area.

And, as area churches and organizations bring out their wares for holiday dinners and bake sales, it is possible to take a gastronomic tour of the world, right here in the local community.

Those who prefer their own kitchen to church basements and carry-overs, however, should be pleased to learn that many exotic dishes do not require exotic utensils, skills or ingredients.

In fact, many of the local favorites are easy to prepare.

And what can be more American than picking up the best from other cultures?

Call them pierogie, pierohy, or Polish pockets — these are a favorite of everyone who has tried them.

While families tend to closely guard their secret ingredients or processes, the following is a basic recipe

Pierohy

- 1 cup flour
- 1 egg
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 4 tbs. cold water

Mix all ingredients with enough water to make a medium soft dough. Knead well, then roll out until thin.

Cut into 30 squares. Place 1 teaspoon of filling on each square and fold into triangle. Pinch edges well to keep filling from escaping.

Drop in salted boiling water and cook until all pierohy rise to the top, then cook for five more minutes.

When done, pour in a small amount of cold water and strain.

Place in serving dish and pour butter that has been melted and slightly browned over the pierohy.

Cheese filling

- 1/2 cup drained cottage cheese
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 tsp. butter
- pinch of salt

Combine all ingredients and mix thoroughly.

Potato filling

- 1 large potato cooked and mashed
- 1 tbs. melted, browned butter
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup crushed peppermint leaves

Mix potato and butter, add salt and peppermint to taste.

Cabbage filling

- 1 pound head of cabbage
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tbs. butter
- 1 tsp. sugar

Chop cabbage fine, add salt and let stand several minutes.

Squeeze water from cabbage and fry in butter (after allowing butter to brown).

Add sugar and stir occasionally.

Christmas recipes reflect many cultures

to keep from burning. Fry until golden brown.

For those whose childhood Christmas memories include cold weather and shopping at Famous Barr, French onion soup is a definite holiday memory.

This baked soup actually originated in the Hesse area of Germany, where it is a lunchtime favorite of holiday shoppers.

Famous-Barr French onion soup

- 5 lb. onions
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 tsp. black pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/2 cup flour
- 3 quarts canned beef bouillon
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1 cup white wine
- 1/2 lb. sliced mozzarella or Swiss cheese

French bread

Slice onions, approximately

1/2-inch thick. In large pot, melt butter and saute about 1 1/2 hours.

Add pepper, bay leaf, flour,

salt and wine and saute for 10 more minutes. Add bouillon and simmer for two hours. Put in refrigerator overnight.

To serve, heat soup and place into oven-proof bowls. Slice bread into 1/2-inch-thick slices, float bread slice and cheese on top of soup.

Place under oven broiler

(approximately 550 degrees) for two minutes or until brown.

A more traditional Christmas soup is mushroom soup.

Christmas soup

- 1 quart (32 oz.) canned mushrooms, drained and chopped
- 1 quart sauerkraut juice
- 3 quarts water
- 1 cup rice
- 1 tbs. butter
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 tbs. flour
- salt and pepper

Mix sauerkraut juice and water in large pot, bring to boil. Add mushrooms and simmer for 1/2 hour.

Wash rice, drain and add to boiling soup. Simmer 1/2 hour more. In a frying pan, brown the onion and flour in butter. Add to soup and mix well.

In most of the mountainous areas of Europe, the ground floor of homes is given over to the livestock for the winter.

This arrangement gives the cattle, sheep and goats shelter while using the rising body heat of the animals to warm the floor of rooms where the people stayed.

This served as a practical basis for the legend that the cow, which gave the baby Jesus warmth and milk, was a favored animal in the eyes of Christ.

Many children through the ages have sneaked downstairs on Christmas Eve to see if the cows actually knelt in prayer, as the legend states.

It is no surprise then, that in the deep mountain valleys of Serbia, dairy products — such as the hot cheese pie — are a part of Christmas.

Prijesnac

- 2 cups flour
- 2 cups shortening
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 4 cups drained cottage cheese
- 4 cups brick cheese (cheddar, colby etc.)
- 1/2 cup sweet cream
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup flour
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup cornmeal

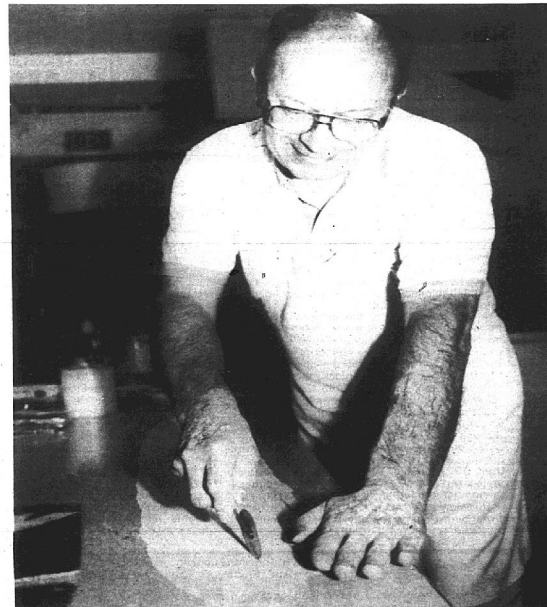

Mix 2 cups flour, shortening, cold water and 1/2 teaspoon salt into pie dough, roll out on floured surface to a size larger than the pan to be used. When overlapped after the filling is added, the dough should cover all the center.

Mix all remaining ingredients together thoroughly. Pour filling

Delinquent tax sale set

The sale of delinquent real estate taxes for the year 1992 will begin on Monday and will continue until concluded, Madison County Treasurer John Shimkus has announced.

"I encourage those who have not paid their taxes to do so on or before Dec. 11, to avoid additional fees and interest," said Shimkus.

To facilitate payment, the treasurer's office will again be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. this Saturday, Dec. 11.

"This is strictly for the convenience of those who wish to pay their real estate property taxes in person prior to the tax sale on Monday," Shimkus said.

Trolleys at the Shrine

The National Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows invite you to see the Way of Lights like you've never seen it before — via horse drawn trolley and open air tram tour.

Open Air Tram Trolley, 6 p.m. every half hour, Tuesdays and Thursdays, Dec. 9, 14, 16 and 21. The cost is $5 per person.

Open Air Tram Trolley, 5 p.m. every half hour, Monday, Dec. 27 through Sunday, Jan. 2. The cost is $2 per person. Mulled cider, coffee, hot chocolate and cookies will be served.

For more information, call the Shrine at 397-6700 (TTY).

Corn acreage to be cut

Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy announced that the 1994 corn acreage reduction program will be lowered to zero percent. The adjustment to the corn acreage reduction program was made because the 1993 corn crop is down 31 percent from last year, and the projected 1993 corn carry-over stocks are at the lowest level since 1975.

This action was taken to help assure feed grain supplies for domestic livestock producers and other users and to have sufficient feed grains for export in 1994.

The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, requires that the secretary announce the feed grain ARP percentage on or before Sept. 30. On Sept. 30, the secretary announced the 1994 feed grain ARP percentage of five percent for corn and zero percent for grain sorghum, barley and oats.

The secretary is also authorized to make adjustments in the 1994 program not later than Nov. 15 if the total supply of feed grains changed significantly after the 1994 ARP percentages were first announced.

Tags promote safe driving

Free tie-on-tags for use by tree vendors will be available this year from the Illinois Traffic Safety Leaders (ITSL).

One side of the tag reads, Drive Smart/Drive Sober, Help Keep the Holidays Joyous!

The reverse side of the tag has been left blank of the price of the tree. The tags are 7 inches long and include a wide tie.

The tags are being used in Illinois to call attention to the annual National Drunk and Drugged Driving Prevention Month. Observation this year is this month.

This project is being done in Illinois to call attention to the problem of drinking and driving. The holidays are one of the most hazardous times of the year since the incidences of drinking and driving increase dramatically.

ITSL hopes this reminder attached to the trees will emphasize the seriousness of the problem and promote prevention.

Tags for the Madison County area may be ordered by contacting Jill Heuchert at Piasa Health Care, 345-5200.

Donor poster contest

Secretary of State George H. Ryan said the third annual organ and tissue donor awareness poster contest is being sponsored by his office for all children in grades kindergarten through 12.

"Today more than 1,500 people are on a waiting list for organs right here in Illinois," Ryan said. "We're calling on students to help us spread the word about the importance of becoming an organ donor."

Contest forms and local deadline information are available at schools throughout the state.

A grand prize will be awarded in four separate categories. Grades K-2 will compete for a $75 U.S. Savings Bond; grades 3-5, a $100 bond; grades 6-8, a $200 bond; and grades 9-12, a $500 bond.

Local schools will judge entries and forward one winning poster in each age category to the secretary of state's office by Dec. 10. The grand prize winners will be announced in April during National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness week.

Winning posters will be duplicated and displayed in drivers license facilities throughout the state to encourage Illinoisans to "Sign for Life."

Group seeks help to cut animal road kill

An animal conservation group is seeking mathematicians who are quick on the calculator in an effort to reduce roadside slaughter.

The Home Habitat Society, based in Maryland, is seeking volunteers to help tabulate road kill and monitor surrounding roadway conditions in a year-long survey beginning in January.

"I know it sounds a little bizarre, but it is a very serious study," said Richard Van Vleck, the society's director. "So far, to my knowledge, it has never been done. We just don't have these type of figures with the exception of deer."

The survey, which will wrap up in early 1995, will focus on the numbers and types of animals killed in relation to the type of road, shoulder and surrounding habitat, he said.

"We're basically interested in small animals and birds," he said. "If we can determine what conditions result in the highest road-kill counts, we may be able to reduce the annual slaughter."

Van Vleck said many roadside conditions, including wooded areas, brush and overgrowth, contribute to the amount of road kill.

"We're really interested in hot spots," he said. "Places where multiple animals are struck down. We don't know what to expect as a result of the survey, but if enough people participate we should get some sort of grasp on the situation."

The survey will cover Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Florida. The group narrowed the survey to highly

"Once we have the results we may be able to cut down on the number of kills. Preventative measures, such as proper signs and travel advisories may help the situation."

— Richard Van Vleck

populated states, he said.

Those who participate in the survey will be asked to choose a particular stretch of roadway and monitor road kill on a seasonal basis. Results will be turned in at the end of each season.

"Once we have the results we may be able to cut down on the number of kills," he said.

"Preventative measures, such as proper signs and travel advisories may help the situation."

Van Vleck said hundreds of skunks are killed each year on Maryland roadways during the fourth week of February. The killings, he said, occur during the skunks' mating cycle.

There are dozens of factors that play a role all over the country," he said. "We hope to identify some of the factors because road kill can knock out a major population."

Opossums appear to be the most common victims of road kill, he said. In some states, barn owls and box turtles are commonly slaughtered by moving vehicles.

"People generally do not go out of their way to avoid opossums because they think there is an abundance of them," he said.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When a child who is an unlicensed driver drives the parent's car, are the parents responsible for personal injury resulting from an accident? The answer to this question depends on whether the minor child had express or implied permission of the parents.

In one recent case, the parents left their home to attend a wedding, and their 15 year old daughter, Elizabeth, took her mother's car keys from a shelf and drove the family's Chevy Blazer forward and backward in the driveway. She then drove around the block, and when she returned home, she pulled into the driveway. As she did so, Elizabeth's foot slipped off the brake and onto the accelerator. The vehicle struck Elizabeth's friend and pushed her through the wall of a storage shed.

The question in this case was whether the parents were responsible for the actions of their 15 year old daughter who was an unlicensed driver. The facts here indicated that the mother and father never gave the daughter permission to drive any of the family's cars either prior to or on the day of the accident, in fact, the father testified that Elizabeth had been told specifically that she could not drive the car on the night of the accident. Further evidence indicated that Elizabeth had started and moved the car in the driveway in order to wash it on prior occasions.

The court felt that in this case the parents could not be held responsible for the actions of their minor daughter. The Appellate Court indicated that this was certainly not a case where the parents had given express permission to the daughter to drive. The Plaintiff attempted to argue that Elizabeth had been given implied permission to drive based on the previous conduct of the parents in allowing her to move the car in the driveway.

The Appellate Court held that allowing an underage daughter to start the car on cold mornings, or move the car in the driveway in order to wash it did not imply permission to drive on the streets at some later date when the parents were not home. Under the circumstances in this case, the Appellate Court ruled that the parents were not liable for the injury caused by their minor daughter.

Lots of money seen as cure for flooding along creek

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

Fifteen officials from a variety of regional and local government agencies met Friday night to consider the plight of the Canteen Creek Drainage District.

After 90 minutes, the officials seemed to agree only that the district's problems will not be easy to solve and that the key to solving them will be money, and lots of it.

Collinsville officials called the meeting after heavy rains on Nov. 13 breached the Canteen Creek levee in several places, leading to the second worst flooding here in 10 years.

Officials from the state, Madison County, the city of Collinsville, the Metro East Sanitary District, the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan and Regional Planning Commission and Canteen Creek Drainage District board members Jerry Davis and Joe Simpson attended Friday's meeting at Collinsville City Hall.

While they came up with no solutions, those who attended agreed that they should continue to meet as a loose working group to help the Canteen board solve its problems.

The district is small — it covers about 600 acres in Madison and St. Clair counties, and controls 1.6 miles of the Canteen Creek. It is so poor, with annual revenue of only about $2,700 a year, that it is virtually powerless to make the necessary repairs and maintenance on the creek.

St. Clair County hasn't assessed taxes for its portion of the district for 15 years, officials said.

Through years of inactivity, the district has accumulated about $37,000. But John Gitchoff, attorney for the Metro East Sanitary District, said Friday that he had figured at one time that at least $225,000 in repair and maintenance needs to be done in the area controlled by the Canteen Creek Drainage District.

"There are lots of problems there, and there isn't any money generated from that district to solve them," said Madison County Board member Don Rea.

The U.S. Soil and Conservation Service already has appropriated $10,000 for emergency work on the levee, to fix the breaches caused in last month's flooding. That money can be used only to plug the breaches.

Brett Hanke, Collinsville public works director, said the district's best bet might be to use its accumulated $37,000 to hire an attorney.

He said the board should find out what it can do legally to levy more money, and especially to annex more territory.

Hanke read a passage from a state law that seemed to indicate that anyone who connects onto a ditch belonging to the district is in effect giving their permission to be annexed.

Shang Greathouse of the Metro East Sanitary District added that this may be an opportune time to secure some outside funding for the district, with large amounts of federal relief money being carved up in the wake of this summer's flooding.

George Andres, director of planning for SIMAPC, said flood relief money is currently coming out of 22 different funds. He said his agency may be able to provide the district with some free advice on obtaining some of it.

Dave Dietzel of the Madison County Highway Department, state Rep. Jay Hoffman and Wayne Kinney of the SCS all said they are working on long-term studies that would include Canteen Creek.

Prior to Friday's meeting, there had been some talk of simply absorbing the drainage district into the much larger Metro East Sanitary District.

But those at Friday's meeting said that would require a referendum and would be very difficult to accomplish, and Greathouse said the Metro East Sanitary District isn't particularly interested in absorbing the drainage district.

While the meeting turned up no easy solutions, it led to some first steps. The Canteen Creek board has not met officially for some time because of a dispute over how many members are to be appointed by St. Clair County, and Hoffman pledged to help iron out the disagreement.

Driver's licenses going 3D

Holograms to make licenses tamper-proof

SPRINGFIELD — The introduction of three-dimensional holograms on Illinois driver's licenses next year is expected to end the trade in fake IDs. The Secretary of State George Ryan said.

The new licenses should aid in the effort to reduce teenage drinking and driving, Ryan also contended.

At a press conference Dec. 2, Ryan displayed samples of the new licenses that include a holographic likeness of the Abraham Lincoln penny when viewed from one angle and the state seal from the other.

"Our hope is that this tamper-proof driver's license will be a major player in forcing fake ID mills to close up shop," Ryan said.

He said secretary of state's police have broken up 14 major fake driver's license operations since he took office in January 1991.

Two of the major rings operated on the campuses of Illinois State University and Eastern Illinois University and others targeted high school students. None was in the Metro East area.

About 4,000 fake licenses or identification cards have been seized.

Youngsters and others have paid up to $500 for the fake licenses in order to drink illegally, while some illegal aliens have paid $1,500 for them, Ryan said.

Illinois will follow California, Massachusetts and Hawaii in switching to the licenses that reportedly cannot be reproduced.

Among groups endorsing the change is Mothers Against Drunk Driving, which has crusaded against teenage drinking.

"People under age 21 spend hundreds of dollars to buy fake IDs for one reason and one reason only. A fake ID is their ticket to get into bars and buy liquor," Ryan said.

"Unfortunately, a teen with a fake ID is a tragedy in the making. Drivers under age 21 are almost twice as likely as all other drivers to be killed in a drunk-driving crash."

He urged parents of drivers under 21 to have them pay $10 to get a new hologram license, which will become available to all residents after Jan. 1.

Unless people request them, the new licenses will be issued to drivers in rotation as licenses, typically good for four years, expire.

Adding the hologram, a new security number and bar-code system will increase the cost of producing each license from about $1 to $7 cents.

However, Ryan said he does not intend to seek a fee increase to cover the cost and will cover the added expense out of his existing budget.

About two million licenses are produced each year.

The hologram is encased in the plastic surrounding the license.

All those who had crowded in on one side of the road in Springfield or Edwardsville, Ill., were guaranteed entry into lotteries for ballot position.

Although filing continues for eight days, Ryan noted that most candidates have their petitions standing out in the cold. In the middle of December, so that they can take part in what is supposed to be an orderly democratic process, he said.

He is considering two possibilities.

problem — that people don't know about it.

"And he doesn't know about us, how can they consider us when they're thinking about expanding or relocating?" Orbals asked.

"Granite City is pretty much a well-kept secret. We're right across the Chain of Rocks Bridge from St. Louis, just south of Interstate 270.

"On the other side of the river know little if anything about our business institutions and resources."

Even business leaders on this side of the Mississippi are surprised to discover the established businesses here, Orbals said.

"At the recent business expo in Collinsville, people were surprised to find that Capri Sun and Prairie Farms Dairy are right here," Orbals said.

The businesses featured in the campaign are sharing the $5,550 total cost of the ad series.

Whether you make it, move it, store it or sell it, we'll help you do it better in Granite City," the ad states.

Wydra says in the advertisement featuring him that "Granite City's only weakness is not knowing people know about its tremendous list of assets."

Orbals agreed with that assessment, and said the ad campaign is a response designed to remedy that weakness.

"I think that is our biggest not in a financial position to hire anyone.

Asked if the officers could volunteer, Nighohossian said state and federal wage laws require employees be paid and said the union contract further specifies the wage rate for police officers.

Both Bridick and Nighohossian said the city would also face severe liability problems if it put untrained police officers on the street.

Bridick said people are already using police officers "for anything and everything" and the city's insurance company often agrees to monetary settlements "even though I think my officers did nothing wrong."

"The fact is that things you used to be able to get away with you can't get away with anymore."

Alderman Eleanor Armour said about the possibility of voluntary citizen patrols to help the police department.

Bridick and Nighohossian said the city cannot sanction citizen patrols because of the same liability concerns.

"If we sanction (these patrols) and one of the citizens gets out of line and we get sued, it's going to cost the taxpayers big money," Nighohossian said.

Nighohossian said getting out of line one of these people can do is lock their doors."

Nighohossian said, "All I can say is that in some areas people have been able to take back their streets by sticking together and taking a stand."

"I don't know the answer. If I did, I could make a whole lot of money where there is no good answer."

FAMILY

Church celebrating anniversary

The Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church will commemorate and celebrate the 30 years in its present location at 1035 Market St., Madison. The church was organized in 1963 at 613 West Third St., Madison.

The theme for this celebration, "Continue in the Faith," is based on ground scripture from I Corinthians 13:58.

The services will begin on Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. with the special guest speaker, Rev. John H. Williams, choir and congregation, from New Salem Missionary Baptist Church, Venice. Many chairs from this local area are invited to participate in the service.

Friday evening's guest speaker is the Rev. Flex Dancy, St. Paul A.M.E. Church, St. Louis, with the church choir and congregation. The Rev. William Dancy, St. Peter's A.M.E. Church, St. Louis, will install the new officers of Bethel. There will be a welcome back for the ninth year from members of Bethel to Rev. John Q. Owens, pastor, and his wife Dorothy, the First Lady of Bethel. A reception will follow the services in the Oliver Hall. Patricia Whitcomb is chairwoman of the reception.

Sunday at 1 p.m., a dinner will be held at 2:15 p.m. a march from the old church site, 613 West Third St., to the present church location will be held as was 20 years ago. There will be singing of hymns of praise to the Heavenly Father and greetings from the mayors of Venice and Madison.

Candle lightings in memory of the deceased Pastor Fred H. Oliver and officers that made it possible to complete this new structure will be held. The special anniversary messenger will be the Rev. ## McFarland looks back on milestone game

Keith McFarland was at Randy's Restaurant in Troy on Nov. 20, minding his own business, when the word came. The bearer of the news was Ed Saraghe, also of Troy, who had just finished his duties as the official timer at the SIU-Edwardsville men's basketball game against Carthage College. Saraghe told McFarland that Jason Holmes, a freshman from New Castle, Ind., had broken McFarland's school scoring record for one game by getting 45 points. In his first game as a collegian, no less.

McFARLAND'S REACTION? "That would have never happened if Larry Graham was still coaching there," said McFarland, a Triad High graduate, half in jest. But Graham, the former Madison High School coach, is no longer at the Cougars' helm. So McFarland's record, which stood for almost 19 years, is no longer. He had 44 points on Jan. 15, 1975, in a 117-48 win over Indiana University-Northwest. McFarland, now in his eighth year in the Madison school district — he is in his fourth year as a second-grade teacher at Harris Elementary School — was hard-pressed to remember when he lit up the scoreboard for his record 44-point performance.

"I remember it was at Edwardsville High School," said McFarland, recalling the days before the Vandalabene Center was built. "I knew we blew some team out. I was getting the right bounces that night. I may have had eight or 10 free throws."

FOR THE RECORD. McFarland connected on 18 field goals that night. He was eight of 10 from the free-throw line. He scored 18 points in the first half and added 26 in the second half. By comparison, Holmes made 14 of 30 shots from the field, including five three-pointers. He also made 12 of 15 free throws.

More vivid in McFarland's mind than the 45-point outburst against Indiana-Northwest was when he scored 40 points in the second half in trying to rally the Cougars in a 112-90 loss to Missouri-St. Louis on March 3 in the last game of that season. McFarland finished with 42 points.

Bob Bone, present Collinsville High School head basketball coach, had 35 points to help lead the Rivermen to victory. The loss probably cost the Jim Dudley-coached squad a shot at the Division II playoffs.

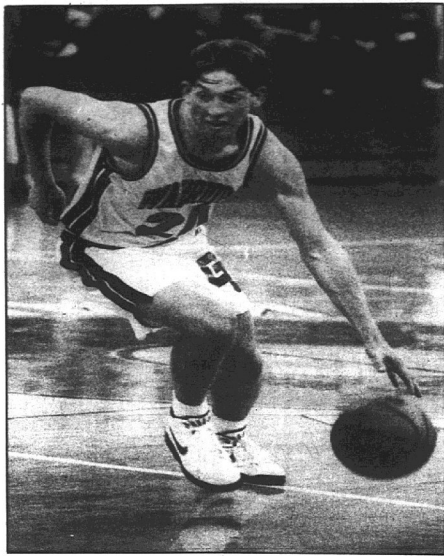

While Holmes erased McFarland's one-game scoring record, Keith is still in the Cougars record book for most field goals in a game. He scored 18 field goals in a game three times — twice against Indiana-Northwest and then in the season-ending loss to UMSL. McFarland blossomed as a basketball player his senior year at Triad after growing six inches, going from 5 feet, 8 inches to 6-2. The Knights advanced to the finals of the sectional his senior year, losing to Collinsville.

McFARLAND CAUGHT the attention of the college scouts. He spent his freshman year at Illinois State, "trying to guard Doug Collins." Collins, a Benton High standout, went on to play and coach in the NBA.

McFarland left Illinois State for Belleville Area College, where he earned All-America honors. He also was the first All-America basketball player at SIUE. John Edwards has since become the second.

New-look East Side up next for Warriors

By R.J. Gerber
Staff writer

East St. Louis will make its first appearance as the defending Southwestern Conference champion Friday in a home game against Granite City.

IN FACT, THE 5-1 Flyers, who will play host to the Warriors (1-1) at 7:45 p.m. Friday in both teams' league opener, sport a new coach and no returning starters.

Ron Woods, the former Assumption High School coach, has assumed the duties at East Side and is enjoying a good beginning. East Side has won four games in a row, including a 68-60 win over Jacksonville at the new Crimmins' Thanksgiving Tournament.

When Woods came in this season he thought he could depend on last year's SWC Player of the Year in Tyrone Caswell. But the 6-6 forward, considered to be the top player in the Metro East, transferred to Lincoln.

Last year's Flyer squad was made up entirely of seniors and some thought the lack of experience would hamper East Side early. That has been anything but the case.

A pair of transfers from Belleville East, 6-4 senior forward

Jermaine Perkins and 6-4 junior forward DeMarcus Chapman, have solidified the Flyer front line.

PERKINS LEADS the team in rebounding, grabbing 16 boards per game, while Chapman, who joined Perkins on the all-tournament team at Jacksonville, is pulling down 11 per game and is the Flyers' second-leading scorer.

The rest of the Flyers have done plenty of scoring this season as well. Woods has been able to go as many as nine deep this season. Leading the scoring parade for the Flyers is 6-1 senior guard Michael Harmon, who is averaging 18 points per game.

Harmon, who scored 33 in a blowout win over Lovejoy, began the season as the shooting guard, but was moved to the point after a couple recent developments.

Demond Stevenson, a 6-1 senior forward and the Flyers' best leaper, is done for the season. Stevenson was shot Dec. 2 while walking home from practice and was hospitalized in stable condition.

That, coupled with ineffectiveness by Raymond Moton at the point, allowed Woods to give Harmon control of the offense. Harmon led the Flyers with 17

Time to move on Cook wraps up soccer career at Eastern Illinois

By R.J. Gerber
Staff writer

Granite City's Matt Cook has no regrets about choosing to attend Eastern Illinois University. He just wishes he could have gone out on a better note.

Cook, a former Granite City High soccer superstar, ended his career at Eastern this past fall as a two-time captain of the Panther squad.

AND AFTER THIS season began quickly, the Panthers were 7-2, things changed quickly for EIU. Eastern, a member of the Mid-Continent Conference, ended the year with a 9-9 overall record, including a 3-5 league mark (sixth place).

Cook, a senior fullback, knew with the addition of 10 freshmen that the Panthers might struggle. But when they jumped out to the fast getaway, he was surprised.

"I don't think the younger guys really knew what to expect during the long college season," Cook said. "After the first half of the season I thought we could have a legitimate year. But the second half was just downhill."

And while Cook and his teammates didn't always excel on the field — the Panthers were 2-1-1 in league play — they had plenty of success academically. He was the 1992 EIU Scholar Athlete of the Year and a second-team academic all-Midwest selection in 1991.

THE FINANCE MAJOR, who will graduate in May, said he is thinking of enrolling in law school following his four-year stint at Eastern.

Eastern Illinois senior Matt Cook played for three state tournament teams at Granite City.

"That's my plan right now," said Matt, the son of Donald and Betty Cook. "I've always put a premium on academics. That's always been important to me and my family."

Besides his achievements in the classroom, Cook has also been honored for his play as a defender for the Panthers. For his effort during his senior year he was named to the Mid-Continent Conference second team.

He joined two other teammates on the second team and EIU freshman Brad McTigue was named to the first team. McTigue was also the league's newcomer of the year.

"I've always put a premium on academics. That's always been important to me and my family." — Matt Cook

"We had a lot of new guys on the roster this year after what happened my junior year," said Cook of the worst season in EIU soccer history. "It was just unbelievable that season; we had a lot of attitudes. But this year was a good experience."

"EVEN THOUGH THE expectations weren't that high, we could have done a lot better."

Cook knows plenty about winning experiences. He was a member of three state tournament teams while at Granite City High. The Warriors were led by Cook and John VanBuskirk Jr. to a pair of state titles in 1987 and 1989. Granite City also reached the semifinals in 1988.

And as Cook moved on to the Charleston campus the success on the field didn't exactly continue. But Cook doesn't have any regrets.

"I have a lot of mixed emotions," said Cook, who had two career assists at the Division I level. "I've had a good time and done well in school, so individually I can't complain."

"In a couple years I'll look back and see that my time here was worthwhile."

Lady Warriors rally to beat East St. Louis

By Scott Wuerz
Correspondent

The Lady Warriors improved to 4-1 with a 50-46 defeat of East St. Louis Tuesday in Granite City.

The Flyerettes (2-3) held a 22-21 advantage at the intermission by holding Granite City forward Jamie Cavanaugh to four points in the first half. But sophomore guard Denise McMillan picked up the slack with 13 first-half points to keep the Lady Warriors within striking distance.

CAVANAESS FOUND HER game early in the third quarter, scoring on a jump shot to cut the East St. Louis lead to 24-23, then assisted on a pair of baskets from junior guard Robin Cain.

Flyerettes point guard Marquesha Clark tied the game at 27 with a three-point shot, but after McMillan and East St. Louis guard Darneshia Hill traded free throws, Cavanaugh scored six consecutive free throws to break the game open at 35-29.

Venice outlasts Wesclin in four-overtime marathon

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

It took the Venice Red Devils four overtimes to finally dispose of Wesclin.

Richard Jones buried a three-point bomb with three seconds left in the fourth overtime period to hand Venice High a hard-fought 77-76 victory over visiting Wesclin Tuesday in a non-conference game. Jones also led four treys, led the Red Devils with 24 points.

"I JUST TOLD him to shoot it," Venice coach Clinton Harris said. "He's our best shooter. I didn't do anything but watch the ball when he released it. I was hoping it would go in and it did."

Jones' bomb hit nothing but nylon and destroyed any hopes Wesclin had of pulling off a major upset. The victory improves Venice's record to 2-1. Wesclin, which suffered its first loss of the season, is also 2-1.

"I had the confidence to make that shot," Jones said. "I knew the moment I let it go that it was going in. It all came down to me. I didn't want to go another overtime period, and I didn't want to lose the game."

It's the first time either school has ever gone four overtimes.

"I can't ever remember going four overtimes before," Harris said. "If we did, it had to be before I got here (1983). But Wesclin should have won this game. They outplayed us in every facet. We just got lucky at the end."

THE WARRIORS HAVEN'T beaten Venice since 1991. But they nearly turned the trick with a gallant comeback in the fourth quarter. Trailing 47-40, the Warriors outscored Venice 20-13, tying the game at 60-60 and forcing overtime. Venice point guard Wilbert Glasper fouled out during the rally.

"When Glasper fouled out (with 37 seconds left in the fourth quarter), we lost our composure," Harris said. "We didn't have anybody that could bring the ball up the floor. We kept turning the ball over and they capitalized on it."

Jamie Deiters, who led Wesclin with 25 points, ignited the comeback with seven fourth-quarter points. He could have decided the issue in regulation time, but he missed a free throw with four seconds left.

The Warriors had an dismal night at the line, shooting 55 percent (10 of 18).

"When you shoot like a grade-school team, you deserve to lose," Wesclin coach Paul Lusk said. "We had a million chances to win this game, but we couldn't hit our free throws. It's a tough loss to swallow. We came in here and outplayed an excellent team, but we have nothing to show for it."

JOSH STONE, who poured in 24 points, said the Warriors felt pressured at the line, especially in overtime.

"When they called time out (with 10 seconds left in the final overtime period), it got to me a

St. Elizabeth's cagers lose twice

The eighth-grade boys basketball team at St. Elizabeth's School dropped to 3-5, losing 55-45 against Duplo on Friday and 48-36 to St. Ambrose on Sunday.

"St. Ambrose had a 6-4 kid and he was too much for us," said St. Elizabeth's coach Paul Kacera. "We fell behind and couldn't come back."

"We beat Duplo last year in seventh grade, but they have a 6-2 kid who transferred from a parochial school. He scored 40 points against us."

Tim Jackstadt led St. Elizabeth's with 12 points against Duplo. Paul Kacera had nine points against Duplo and seven points against St. Ambrose.

The team plays St. Mary's Sunday at Marquette High School and will play Monday at St. Boniface in Edwardsville.

"We only have 12 boys in the eighth grade, so we're not doing too bad considering that," Kacera said. "We have eight kids on the team, including one seventh-grader."

Granite City grad McKechan earns conference honors

Mark McKechan of Granite City was a member of the 1993 MacMurray College men's soccer team, which finished its season with an overall record of 13-7-1. He was a back for the Highlanders.

The son of James and Linda McKechan of Granite City, McKechan is a graduate of Granite City High School. He is a sophomore at MacMurray, a national liberal arts college in Jacksonville. It is affiliated with the United Methodist Church.

McKechan had two goals and two assists and was selected as an honorable mention all-St. Louis Intercollegiate Athletic Conference performer.

The Highlanders soccer club, coached by Bill Killen, tied Maryville University 0-0 in the SLIAC tournament championship game and finished second conference regular season action with a 6-1 record. MacMurray finished the season ranked seventh in the NCAA Division III South Central Region.

little bit," said Stone, who missed the free throw that led to Jones' last-second heroics. "I struggled with my release and bounced it short off the rim. It's tough losing like this, especially when you're trying to prove yourself after the season we had last year (19-17 record)."

"But all we can do is learn from this in a positive way. No, it won't be a game we'll easily forget. But maybe next time, we'll remember to make our free throws."

Poor shooting hurts Grigsby eighth-graders

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

It's been anything but a memorable season for Grigsby Junior High's eighth-grade basketball team.

The Gators, who lost to East Alton on Tuesday, are riding a seven-game losing streak. Poor shooting has victimized the Gators this season. Grigsby is only shooting 25 percent from the floor and 30 percent from the charity stripe.

"THAT'S WHY WE'RE losing games by an average of 15 points a game," first-year Grigsby coach Marc Mason said. "We've had a lot of internal problems this season and we've made a lot of personal changes. But the kids have an outstanding attitude. I'm confident we'll get this thing turned around."

Tim Wallace (6-foot-1), who missed the East Alton game with the flu, is Grigsby's leading scorer, averaging 15 points-per-game. He's also averaging four blocks a game. Brian Kamadulski, an excellent three-point shooter, is averaging eight points.

"But Brian needs to shoot more," Mason said. "Like a lot of our kids, he's passing off too much instead of taking the open shot. If Brian would take more shots when he's open, he'd raise his scoring average."

Mason admits, it's been a frustrating season.

"More for the kids than me," he said. "The kids are anxious to learn, but they still haven't developed a solid work ethic. It takes more than just practice or game situations to learn basketball. It takes sacrifice and self-discipline to practice on your own."

"BUT A LOT of these kids haven't learned the meaning of responsibility yet. They're not completely mature, physically or mentally. That can only come with time and patience. The harder they work, the brighter their futures will be."

The Gators travel to Coolidge, which like Grigsby has struggled this season, on Thursday. The Braves are currently 0-6.

"That's a game I feel we can win," Mason said. "We match up with them pretty well. Hopefully, we'll get our act together and play a strong game. It's been a trying season, but I'm not giving up."

Swansea man recorded every day for 56 years

By Kevin Glenn
Staff writer

The past lies captured in an old cardboard box filled with dusty diaries and a host of letters encircled by rotting rubber bands — in Swansea.

Edgar Chamberlin, 70, owns the box, and with it can remember the events of every day for the past 56 years.

"I've kept a diary every year since 1937," said Chamberlin, an Indiana native. "If I were to be president of the United States, they would take all this stuff and build a museum around it."

But he's not — and well, they haven't.

Yet that subtracts nothing from the value of Chamberlin's work. Leaving through the dog-eared, time-aged pages of his memories, he remembers with unfading clarity the world war that took him to England, the Kennedy assassination, the temperature in Belleville Nov. 23, 1983 — 64 degrees.

The entries are admittedly unemotional, recording news items without comment, his breakfast intake and other daily events.

"You'll be in it today," he told a visitor. "My diaries aren't a hot item like (U.S.) Sen. (Bob) Packwood's."

The entries begin in a tiny book his Uncle Ray Edgar gave him for Christmas in 1936.

"I notice he paid all of 10 cents for it," Chamberlin said. Just after starting his personal journal, his stint in the armed services landed him in England Sept. 3, 1943 and the military barred him from writing in it.

"Well, there was a war going on," he said. "The enemy might getcha."

So he wrote letters — hundreds of them — relating to his family for 22 months what the war showed him overseas. Each bears a 6-cent air mail and 10-cent special delivery stamp.

"I saw people sleeping in subways at night (during Hitler's Blitzkrieg bombings)," he said. "I saw (Winston) Churchill go by once in a car."

Shuffling through the box, he switches tracks as he finds old school records, a diary of sorts that fills in where the actual diary leaves off. He chuckles at a "D" average in reading on his first grade report card, and marks on a term paper he wrote at Indiana University in 1943.

"Says here I'm wordy," he said, grinning. Perhaps the criticism stuck and is reflected in his current volunteer work at Collinsville Memorial Public Library. He just finished "weeding" the book collection, throwing away the dead weight.

Chamberlin retired as director of the now-defunct Kaskaskia IP contest open to local DARE students

Illinois Power is inviting fifth- and sixth-graders enrolled in the statewide Drug Abuse Resistance Education program to tell Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar why it is important to stay drug free.

The 1993-94 "Letter to the Governor" contest sponsored by IP and DARE Illinois is intended to reinforce learning from uniformed police officers and sheriff's deputies who teach DARE's anti-drug message.

Last year's contest drew entries from 399 classrooms in 188 schools across Illinois. In April, four winners, their parents and DARE officers met with Edgar and attended a Springfield luncheon in their honor.

This year's contest will have eight regional winners. More than 1,500 schools in Illinois participate in DARE, a 17-week course that teaches youngsters how to resist offers of drugs and respect for law and safety. Students attend a one-hour session each week of the course.

Entries were accepted until Dec. 7 for those taking DARE courses now, and they will be accepted March 1 through March 25 for those taking second semester courses. Letters must be original works of the student, no more than two pages long (one side only) and written in ink or typed. English translations must accompany foreign language entries.

Entries should be submitted to the school's DARE officer.

Cards now available

The St. Louis Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association has released its holiday greeting card for the 1993 season.

All proceeds from the sale will serve 40,000 families in the St. Louis metropolitan area who are affected by Alzheimer's disease. Card orders must be received by Dec. 10. Please contact the chapter at 314-432-3422 for an order form or for more information.

Library System in 1989, and now drives to Collinsville for three hours a week to work at its library.

He plans to spend the rest of his years traveling with his wife, Edith, recording the trips and the daily news — NAFTA's passage is mentioned in last week's entries. And when he's gone, he said he hopes the Indiana state library or historical society in Indianapolis might take interest in his personal annals.

Surveying the piles of letters and books, he said, "I could transcribe it all into a computer, couldn't I?"

Now, he decided, the paper is more valuable — like the memories.

Chamberlin said he knows of many who start diaries but can't keep it up over the years, despite their value. His secret? "Perseverance, I suppose."
